

Disclaimer

All information provided in this zoom presentation is provided for educational, referential and informational purposes only. It is considered a source of information and is not intended to be used for diagnosing, prescribing, treating, curing or preventing any disease or illness or individual health problem or to replace expert care by a qualified medical practitioner.

Having said all that for legal purposes, I really do encourage you to research, research, and research natural alternatives, because after all it is your health we're talking about. In the event the participant of this zoom program uses the information, he/she is prescribing for himself/herself and assuming full responsibility for it. This is his/her right to do so, but Gemsnaturalhealth.com nor its staff assumes no responsibility for his/her actions.

Repeat!!!

This information is not intended for the use of diagnosing any disease, condition or prescribing any treatment whatsoever. It is offered for informational use only, and for use in maintaining and promoting good health in cooperation with Our Heavenly Creator. No responsibility is assumed by the distributors, author or publisher of this information should the information be used without prayer and consulting with the biblical Principles of health as written in God's Word. There is no guarantee of any kind made for the performance or effectiveness of the preparations or methods mentioned on this zoom program without the counsels of God's Word and the true physician. This information is to be used for educational purposes only and has been solely based on the biblical, historical, traditional and evidence-based scientific research relating to the use of herbs as taught and practiced utilizing the Natural Laws of Health as created and designed by our All Wise and Omnipotent Creator.

BIOLOGICAL INDIVIDUALITY

It should not be misconstrued to mean, imply or indicate that the product or programs described here will cure anything, as no such claims are made. Only the body can heal itself in co operation with the biblical principles of health. These nutritional suggestions are not offered as a cure, rather, as aids to the body in reestablishing normal functions. The human body is very complex and fearfully and wonderfully made. Although each person is similar in general structure and function, each is also uniquely different, responding differently to similar stimuli, therapies and conditions. What may help one person in a certain circumstance or conditions, may not help another. This is also true with foods. A particular food that may be nourishing to a healthy person may cause an allergic reaction in another. Each conditions may also be unique. Although thousands have had help from the natural methods described here, there have been and will be cases where destructive pathological changes are so severe, and the bodies own healing mechanisms so weakened, that the process of healing could be an extended process. Persevere, and your hard work will be amply rewarded.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Gemsnaturalhealth.com does not diagnose or prescribe drugs or write prescriptions. We offer this information and suggested programs to those who want to, and are willing to share responsibility for their own health. Do not attempt to treat yourself for any serious condition. Consult with the Great, True physician, God through prayer first. However, if your health care provider says that nutrition is not important and attempts to treat you only with drugs, we suggest that you obtain a second opinion from a Bible believing conscience health care provider who is more aware of the natural methods of biological medicine, because after all, it is your health!